Tribute Wall

“ It is still hard to believe my father is gone. I will always have memories with him. I remember all those shows we watched together. I remember holiday meals together. I remember birthdays together. I remember the times when my father and my mother came to my apartment. They brought me lunch or took me to a nearby restaurant for lunch. When I had a computer question it was my father that I went to. Not many went to my book events at the bookstore that was across the street but my father and my mother were there. I will always have lots of memories.
